

World Population Day

On 11th July 2017, Students and Teachers of Gahlot Institute of Pharmacy celebrated World Population Day by performing a street play at Koparkhairane Railway Station. The students conveyed the importance of Family Planning through their humorous play. The event was attended by students of second year and third year, teachers and also non-teaching staff. Various informative slogans and thoughts were expressed by the participating students. Posters were displayed by the students in order to create awareness amongst people. A crowd of about 60 students had gathered and the street play caught attention of many people. This event was quite successful due to the combined efforts of students and teachers of Gahlot Institute of Pharmacy.
